

Every lead the assessment produces enters one of three tracks based on its score. The job of nurture is simple: keep Raetzer the obvious call for the day they raise. Emails are educational and in Joseph's voice, never a hard sell. Timing below is measured in days from the moment they finish the assessment. All copy is approved by Joseph before anything sends.

High Score

Track A

Ready now — book & show up

Short and fast. The only goal is a prepared prospect who actually shows for the consult.

Day 0

Email

Subject: You're booked — here's how to get the most from our call

Instant confirmation. Restates their time, adds a one-line prep list (what to bring), sets expectations for the consult. Calendar invite attached.

Day 0 + 5m

SMS

Text: Confirmed for [time]. Reply here if anything changes.

Only if a phone number was captured. Cuts no-shows more than any email can.

Day before

Video

Subject: A quick note from Joseph before tomorrow

A 60 second Joseph video, warm and human. Builds rapport so the call opens with trust already in place.

Call - 1h

Auto

Subject / Text: We're on in one hour — join link inside

Final reminder with the one-tap join link.

If no-show

Email

Subject: Sorry we missed you — grab a new time

Sent within the hour, one-click rebook. If still no rebook after two tries, the lead drops into Track B to keep warming.

Mid Score

Track B · The Main Engine

Not yet, but real — educational nurture

Right profile, wrong timing. Build trust over weeks and stay top of mind until their raise is live, then convert to a consult.

Day 0

Email

Subject: Your private capital readiness snapshot

Delivers value first. A short recap of where their answers put them, one thing to fix, no pitch. Earns the open on everything that follows.

Day 2

Video

Subject: The mistake that sinks most first raises

Joseph video 1. The single most common securities misstep founders make, and how to avoid it. Positions him as the expert, not a vendor.

Day 5

Email

Subject: What a clean offering actually looks like

A short, concrete walk-through of a well-structured raise. Educational, builds the picture of what working with Raetzer produces.

Day 9

Video

Subject: 506(b) or 506(c)? A two-minute answer

Joseph video 2. Answers a real decision every raiser faces. Useful enough to forward, which is how referrals start.

Day 14

Email

Subject: When it's worth talking to a securities lawyer

First soft CTA. Frames the right moment to book a consult and offers the link. No pressure, just an open door.

Day 21

Email

Subject: The compliance step founders skip until it's too late

Authority piece on investor protection and filings. Reinforces the cost of getting it wrong, gently raises urgency.

Day 30+

Monthly

Ongoing: One value touch a month — a new Joseph video or a short insight

The long game. A single high-value email each month with a soft CTA every third one, until they raise or opt out. Retargeting ads run in parallel the whole time.

Branched by their answers: a fund manager, a real estate syndicator, and a first-time founder get the same rhythm but topic-swapped emails, so the content always fits their situation. The assessment answers pick the branch automatically.

TRACK C

LOW SCORE

Early or unfit — light long-term touch

Not a fit today. Stay on the radar with minimal effort, and re-score the moment they show real intent.

Day 0

EMAIL

Subject: A resource for when you're ready to raise

Delivers one genuinely useful guide and sets the expectation of occasional, high-value contact. No calendar clutter, no chase.

Monthly

NEWSLETTER

Ongoing: One high-value piece a month, nothing more

Low frequency by design. Keeps Raetzer present without spending time or budget on people who are not close to a raise.

On signal

RE-SCORE

Trigger: They click a consult link or re-take the assessment

Any real intent promotes them straight into Track B or Track A. Cold leads warm themselves on their own timeline.

RUNS ACROSS ALL THREE TRACKS

Re-engagement scoring

Behavior moves a lead between tracks automatically.

Clicks consult link

Promote to Track A — trigger booking outreach immediately

Opens 3+ in a row

Flag as warming — move up the CTA in the sequence

Replies to any email

Route to Joseph — a human conversation beats automation

Re-takes assessment

Re-score and re-route to the track the new score fits

90 days silent

Final "still raising?" check, then suppress to keep the list clean

The retargeting layer

Paid ads reinforce the emails, so the firm is seen between touches.

Warm audiences only — everyone in Track A and B, built from assessment visitors and video viewers.

Joseph's videos run on Meta and YouTube, the same authority pieces the emails link to, for repetition across channels.

Excluded once booked — the moment a consult is set, ads stop, so no budget is wasted and no one feels chased.

Re-engagement is the goal, not reach — every ad points back to booking or re-taking the assessment.

before it enters the sequence.

, properly authenticated, with a clear opt-out on every send.

— educational and credible, never a hard sell.

— content educates and invites a conversation, it never gives advice.
